Our Owners Meet

On June 14 this nation will celebrate the 195th birthday of our national banner. Americans will see more flags displayed on this day than on any other day with the possible exception of the Fourth of July.

No, this isn't going to be another Patrick Henry type speech, although it would be appropriate. It isn't necessary to remind you what the flag symbolizes.

PLAIN TALKS would just like to say thank you. Thank you for being a hard working American citizen. Thank you for realizing that this nation doesn't owe you anything simply because you were lucky enough to be born a free man. Thank you for having the maturity to recognize just how lucky you really are. Thank God.

OUR COVER:

Shareholders from around the nation gathered in the main office building in Beaumont for the 47th annual meeting. President Floyd R. Smith told the shareholders that there was every indication that their earnings per share would rise during the coming year, and also announced the promotion of Norman R. Lee to executive vice president of the company.

99th Consecutive Dividend Norman Lee Elevated To

Election of a new executive vice president and declaration of dividends were among highlights of Gulf States Utilities company's annual shareholders meeting last month.

Norman R. Lee, senior vice president of the Norman R. Lee, newly named executive vice president, told the shareholders that he looked forward to meeting the challenges of his new responsibilities. "I pledge my full attention to the task of providing reliable service to our customers and to keeping your investment profitable."

The Louisiana Public Service Commission held a hearing on May 15 to consider the company's rate increase application pertaining to Louisiana operations. Because of technicalities resulting from the company's filing of actual instead of previously estimated figures, intervenors and commission council moved for deferment of the hearing. Faced with this delay, the company has decided to submit data on a later test period. Date for the next hearing has not been set, but is expected to be soon.

company since 1970 and a director of the company since 1967, was elected executive vice president. The announcement was made by Floyd R. Smith, president and principal executive officer.

The 47th annual meeting of shareholders was held in the company's general offices in Beaumont.

In addition to the election of Mr. Lee, the board of directors, in session prior to the shareholders meeting, declared regular dividends on all issues of preferred stock and a dividend of 26 cents per share of common stock, payable June 15, to shareholders of record May 24. This was the 99th consecutive dividend declared by the company.

Approximately 200 shareholders attending the meeting heard reports on the company's present condition and anticipated growth from Mr. Smith, Samuel L. Adams, senior vice president-engineering and production, and Joseph O. Robichau, vice president-marketing.

Mr. Smith reported that 1971 revenues increased eight per cent over 1970 but net income showed only a slight increase. Earnings per share were three cents less than 1970, dropping from $1.49 to $1.46, the first decline in earnings per share since 1961. Primary reason for the decline was inflation, which finally could no longer be overcome by improved technology, increased productivity, and tight operations, Mr. Smith stated.

He explained that the economic squeeze had forced the company last June to request its first electric rate increase in nearly 20 years, and that regulatory authorities with jurisdiction over the majority of our customers in Texas had approved the requested eight and one-half per cent increase, which the company plans to implement in Texas beginning June 1.

Mr. Adams explained that dwindling supplies and the rapidly increasing cost of fossil fuels such as natural gas and low sulphur oil prompted the company to plan its first nuclear power station near St. Francisville, La., on the Mississippi River, 25 miles north of Baton Rouge. Mr. Adams pointed out that Gulf States has been active for many years in both "fast-breeder" fission reactor programs, to which the government has assigned major priority because their success will mean the extension of hundreds of years of available energy to provide power, and the nuclear fusion program, which, if achieved, will provide sufficient power supply to last the life of the planet.

Mr. Robichau told shareholders that Gulf States was moving from a "sales" to a "marketing" philosophy, in keeping with today's public concern for consumerism, environment and the quality of life. He revealed that dramatic residential developments in the area served by the company indicated continued accelerated growth in the years ahead.

Shareholders re-elected all incumbent directors as follows: Mr. Smith, Mr. Lee, Mr. Adams, Joseph R. Murphy, Benjamin D. Orgain, and Glenn E. Richard of Beaumont; Seth W. Dorbandt of Conroe; Harrell R. Smith and Oliver P. Stockwell of Lake Charles; John W. Barton, Charles P. Manship, Jr. and Eldon A. Werner of Baton Rouge; Fred V. Wilson of Port Arthur, and Edwin H. Hiam of Boston, Mass.

Mr. Lee was born in Grayson, La., and attended Louisiana State University before serving in the Navy during World War II. Following the war, he earned his degree in electrical engineering from California Institute of Technology. He joined the company in 1949, after working two years with Allis-Chalmers. Mr. Lee began his career as an engineer in Beaumont and held various engineering and managerial posts in the company's Beaumont and Lake Charles divisions until 1967 when he was promoted to vice president responsible for Baton Rouge operations and elected a director of the company. Two years later he was named vice president-Louisiana operations. Mr. Lee returned to Beaumont in 1969 as vice president-division operations, the post he held until elected senior vice president in 1970.

He completed advanced management courses at both the Harvard School of Business and Georgia Tech.

Mr. Lee is active in civic affairs. He is presently chairman of the aviation committee of the Beaumont Chamber of Commerce. He has held positions of leadership in the last two United Appeals drives. He serves on the board of directors of the American National Bank.

Married to the former Nell Ray of Beaumont, the Lees have two children, Rebecca and Norman, Jr.

In other business, the shareholders approved the designation by the board of Lybrand, Ross Bros. & Montgomery as the firm of independent public accountants to audit the company books for 1972.

Baton Rouge Now Ranks

By HENRY JOYNER
Contributing Editor

"A community of beauty and functional fitness that enhances the quality of life for all citizens and visitors" was the goal set forth when Baton Rouge, Louisiana embarked on a program of massive revitalization of the downtown area in 1968.

"We had reached rock bottom with respect to commerce, looks and pride," according to Ray Burgess, Director of Public Works, "Downtown was a place people just did not want to go. And, as a result, businesses were moving to the suburban areas and there went jobs and incomes. The heart of Baton Rouge was dying."

The downtown area was a vibrant economic factor in the growth of this active riverfront city in the 1920's, 30's and 40's. But with the rapid industrial and population growth of the mid-50's and 60's, the core of the city was sadly neglected and began to decay. A rehabilitation-revitalization program on a scale the city had never seen was necessary to "turn Baton Rouge around."

One aspect of the project, the high-intensity street lighting, has brought the city national attention and has caused Baton Rouge to be dubbed the "best lighted city in Louisiana."

"A better atmosphere had to be created if we were to attract people back to downtown," says Dolph McKowen, commercial sales representative and coordinator of the project. "We not only had to make the streets safe for people at night, but to make the area as attractive as we could. The first order of business however was to stop the decay as rapidly as we could."

Lafayette Street at night. Lafayette Street looking east to the Capitol is ablaze with lights as a result of the new lighting system. The trend of business moving out of the city to the suburbs has been reversed, and businesses are moving back into the downtown area.

Sees The Light, As Best In State

A 40 square block area bordered by the state capitol complex on the north, the city government complex on the south, the Mississippi River on the west and an interstate highway on the east, was the target zone. The average lighting in this area ranged from one-quarter to one footcandle.

"To raise the lighting level to six to eight footcandles, which we felt would insure people's safety after dark and discourage vandalism and burglaries, we chose to use 1000 watt mercury vapor deluxe white lamps (GEM-1000 luminaires)," according to McKowen. "The esthetic values of the surroundings had to be considered too. A specially-designed octagon shaped, polished aggregate finished pole was chosen to help create a more pleasant atmosphere."

Gulf States engineers, working with the City Department of Public Works, designed the new street lighting system which, when presented, was adopted by the city fathers intact. "Two luminaires per pole are mounted 40 feet above the street level on six foot "wishbone" brackets," says Lee Savoy, a company engineer who worked closely with the city on the system design. "The standards are spaced 80 feet apart in a staggered arrangement. There are a total of 808 luminaires in the downtown area."

Construction on the new lighting system began in September, 1968, with completion scheduled for the end of 1972. But immediately after the installation of lights began, changes in the area were seen.

The mayor received feedback almost immediately. "At the beginning I didn't get too many compliments," laughs Mayor W. W. "Woody" Dumas. "Some of the merchants didn't particularly care for it at the time; but today we receive nothing but compliments, not only locally, but from other cities throughout the nation."

Sporting a "wishbone" look, the street light system was designed in part by Lee J. Savoy who worked closely with the Department of Public Works in Baton Rouge. "There are 804 luminaires in the downtown area," said Mr. Savoy.

With the project half-completed, merchants are boasting of the best sales year in recent times, despite construction work on the streets. Some point directly to the high level of illumination as a prime reason for their 25-30% increase in business, particularly in night shoppers. Store owners with both downtown and suburban area locations now report that sales downtown have, in some cases, surpassed those of their stores in the suburban areas.

City police officials point to the greatly reduced instances of vandalism and burglaries since the new lights were installed. "The undesirable elements that once hung around downtown street corners at night have all but disappeared. And assaults in this area are a thing of the past," police report.

"The decay of downtown has been stopped," McKowen says, "and rebuilding will come with time."

New investment in multistory buildings has already been attracted to the core of Baton Rouge. Savings and loans, insurance companies, brokerage firms, oil companies and banks have relocated headquarters in the downtown area. Multistory state governmental office buildings are being added to the skyline. Plans are on the drawing board for several 22-24 story buildings, and a highrise home for senior citizens is currently under construction.

"We have over 20,000 people working downtown," according to John Bateman, local banker and chairman of the Chamber of Commerce's Downtown Streets and Improvement Committee. "And I see this area of Baton Rouge developing into a governmental and financial district with specialty shops to serve the people who work here. Street improvements, tree planting, underground utilities, new sidewalks and the new street lights have made all this possible. Benches and other street furniture will further improve the looks."

The city government has announced plans to construct a $28 million municipal and civic complex with a convention center on a 10-block tract of land in a distressed area that was formerly occupied by old houses, vacant stores, warehouses and low income properties. A plaza is currently under construction on the major shopping streets downtown.

Businessmen and city officials speak of the future of downtown Baton Rouge in optimistic terms. Mayor Dumas: "It was a complete reversal. Everybody was moving out, now they are coming back. Money is being spent here, and there is a lot of personal interest in the downtown district now. It is more beautiful now, and that means people care. We see a migration back to the business district, but not in the same way as it was before. There will be no large shopping center; rather small shops set up to serve the office-workers, restaurants and theaters. The heart of Baton Rouge was and will continue to be a well-lighted downtown "business district".

The future of Baton Rouge is indeed bright.

Looking down Convention Street in downtown Baton Rouge, the new high intensity lights have done much to improve, not only the looks of the city, but economic growth as well. The lights have helped Baton Rouge attain the name of "the best lighted city in Louisiana."

FINANCIAL REPORT

Mr. Smith Predicts Earnings To Increase During 1972

Floyd R. Smith, president of the company, predicted that rate increases granted in the company's Texas service area could increase common stock earnings per share by nine cents this year.

Mr. Smith made his remarks at the company's annual shareholders meeting held in the firm's main headquarters building at Beaumont.

The company's board of directors also declared regular dividends on all issues of preferred stock and a dividend of 26 cents on each share of common stock, all of these to be paid on June 15. This marked the 99th consecutive common dividend to be declared by the directors.

In recounting activities of 1971, Mr. Smith told shareholders that revenues grew by eight per cent over 1970 but pointed out that net income increased by only $11,000. Earnings per share, he added dropped by three cents, from $1.49 to $1.46, to mark the first decline in earnings per share since 1961.

Inflationary pressures in 1971, said Mr. Smith, prompted the company to initiate electric rate increase proceedings last June. Granting of the 8.5 per cent increase "has been delayed both by normal regulatory lag and by President Nixon's Wage and Price Control Order in the latter part of 1971 and by the utility rate freeze which only ended on March 25."

But, he added, "As of the moment, regulatory authorities having jurisdiction over a majority of our customers in Texas have approved this increase, and it is our intention to bill these customers under the higher rates commencing June 1."

"This step alone," said Mr. Smith, "should add approximately nine cents in earnings this year to each share of common stock."

Huntsville: A New Home

Employees in Huntsville, Tex. have a new home. Located at 1220 10th Street, the new building is a far cry from the old office which has served the area for the past 34 years. "We're very happy to be moving in," said District Superintendent Frank Robinson, "we've been in the other office a long time."

Plain Talks Reporters Very Important People

No publication, whatever its size, can long survive without the hard work and cooperation of its news gathering force-- the reporters. PLAIN TALKS is no exception.

Our magazine currently lists 45 employees as reporters. These people, located throughout the system, constantly send in pictures and information concerning company people around them. The majority of this information is used in the Coffee Cup section of PLAIN TALKS, with the major stories and news items appearing elsewhere in the magazine.

Many of the compliments received by the editor can be directly passed on to the reporters who first brought the "idea" of the story to the editor's attention. PLAIN TALKS would like to introduce a few of these reporters to you. It is planned that all 45 will be recognized in coming issues. They deserve a pat on the back. If you don't already know them, take the time to meet them. They will be happy to see you and pass along any news items you have for publication in PLAIN TALKS.

Bobbie Denais
Lafayette

Bobbie Denais is our "girl Friday" in Lafayette, capital of the Louisiana Cajun country. Of Cajun decent herself, naturally one of Bobbie's favorite hobbies is cooking. Almost as naturally, the other is fishing.

Blessed with an outgoing personality, Bobbie has no trouble in feeding PLAIN TALKS with plenty of information about employees in her area. She is a departmental clerk in the Sales Department, and has been with the company since 1958. Bobbie is married to Lucas Denais, and they have two children, Christina (15) and Stacy (13).

Betty Dickschat
Navasota

Pretty Betty Dickschat takes care of Navasota area news. A native Texan, Betty is a graduate of Navasota High School, and married to Leonard E. Dickschat, owner of Dickschat's Appliance Co., in Navasota.

Betty is the mother of four, Richard Brett (13), Vicky Lynn (12), Darlene Denise (11) and Dean Everett (8).

Betty has been with the company since 1962 and has a sister, Bobbie Burke, who also is a Gulf Stater in Conroe.

Melanie Hima
Baton Rouge

This pretty reporter is Melanie Hima, a departmental clerk in the Substation Department. Another sports fan, Melanie enjoys bowling, sewing and skiing both on water and on snow.

Melanie was a single gal until early this year when a helper in the Line Department, George Robert Hima, convinced Melanie that two can live cheaper than one.

A New Orleans native, Melanie is a 1965 graduate of St. Joseph High School and attended LSU for two and a half years as a Fine Arts student. She was employed by the company in 1969.

Linda McSwain
Beaumont

Covering the Beaumont Service Center like wall plaster is Linda Bean McSwain. Virtually nothing goes unnoticed by this adept reporter. Linda has not been a reporter for very long, less than a year, but she continues to rate among the best.

A native of Silsbee, Tex., but reared in Kountze, Linda entered Stephen F. Austin University in Nacogdoches. Her studies were interrupted by love, and she and her husband, S. W. "Benny" McSwain moved to Beaumont. Linda joined the company after graduating from business school in Beaumont in 1965.

Fishing, cooking, reading and going on hunting trips with Benny are her main hobbies, but she is finding reporting a fun thing too. "This is my first experience at reporting," says Linda. "I wrote stories and poems as a teenager and even sent one (a poem) to a girl's magazine. The poem didn't get published and I think I was secretly relieved at the time."

Del Vavasseur
Port Allen

When it comes to bowling, reporter Del Vavasseur of Port Allen should be an expert. She has been a league secretary for a number of years, and also enjoys gardening and reading.

Del keeps very active with many church and outside activities. She attends Holy Family Catholic Church and is a member of the church's School Booster Club, and Catholic Daughters of America. She also keeps books for Holy Family and for Christ the King Chapel on the campus of LSU. She has been with the company since 1953.

Barbara Lindsey
Beaumont

Barbara Lindsey works as a senior key punch operator in the Information and Data Services (IDS) Department in Beaumont. Another native Texan, Barbara graduated from Sour Lake High School in 1964, and went on to receive a Business College degree in 1966.

Barbara helps keep tabs on the goings on within the main office, and has been with the company since 1966.

Johnnie Harris
Lake Charles

Johnnie Harris must rate as one of PLAIN TALKS's top reporters as she consistently sends in many articles about employees in the Lake Charles area, specifically in the Service Center.

Always with a smile on her face, Johnnie is a native of Iowa, La. She is married to Don Harris, and they have three children.

Johnnie has been with the company since 1967 and enjoys her work as a reporter because she meets a lot of people and always knows what's going on around her.

Lenelle Juban
Denham Springs

Denham Springs (right next door to Baton Rouge) is the area covered by Lenelle M. Juban, another talented reporter. Reporting is nothing new to Lenelle as she was once employed by the Denham Springs News.

Lenelle is married to Alton Ray Juban, and is the mother of two children, Mary (7) and Tommy (2).

A sports enthusiast, Lenelle can be found during the summer months after work keeping score for the recreation and parks commission boys softball program. Hubby Alton Ray gets into the act as an umpire. Lenelle also enjoys motorcycling and volleyball.

Jo Anne Parish, executive steno in Baton Rouge, had a big hand in making "moonshine" in the Baton Rouge area. She hand painted Reddy Kilowatt's moonshine attire as mascot of the sales campaign.

Moonshine Campaign Is Successful

Employees in the Baton Rouge Division know all about making moonshine, and the law enforcement officers of the area are all for it.

Walt Wright, supervisor-residential sales, and Henry Joyner, advertising representative in Baton Rouge, have been conducting a Security Lite sale using the theme "Make your own moonshine." The campaign is based on an idea by Ken Haynie, artist-Advertising & Public Relations Department in Beaumont.

Mr. Wright and Mr. Joyner, along with some talented art work by Jo Anne Parish, executive steno in Baton Rouge, have taken the basic idea and turned it into a very successful campaign to sell the Security Lites in rural areas. Reddy Kilowatt, dressed in overalls and holding a jug, is the emblem or mascot of the sales campaign.

At latest count the Gonzales District was leading the pack in the sale of the lights after the first tally. A moonshine party will be given to the winning district.

The visitors, all with the electric utility industry in their own country, discussed a number of construction and design procedures used by our company.

Bill Barksdale Has Low Gross 78, But Loses Low Net To Corley

Action was hot and heavy during the Live Wires Golf Tournament. At left Tom Jasper, Ken Jumel and Ward McCurtain voice encouragement on the first tee. Meanwhile, below, Jim Minner and Bill Barksdale watch as Jack Shirey hit his second shot off the cart path that crosses a body of water.

Bill Barksdale, Port Arthur, fought off a strong challenge by Luther Risher of Beaumont treasury to capture low gross honors in the Annual Live Wires Golf Tournament with a 78, but lost the championship by one shot following the handicap when Rex Corley, playing out of Houston as a guest, came up with a 72 low net total.

Tom Jasper, playing in the third flight, took low net honors for the day with a 70 based on his 121 game. Jim Johnson won the first flight with a low net 72½, while Jim Wilder captured the second flight with a 71½.

Some 56 golfers teed off in the event under the direction of Tom Moses. Joe Fontana, and pretty Judy Bonvillion and Jane Allman kept track of the scores as they came in.

The weather was threatening the golfers all day with an occasional sprinkle adding to the drama. But it was not water from the skies that caused the most trouble, but the water in several lakes along the course.

Complete results of the tournament are as follows: Low net Scores:

Championship Flight: 1. Rex Corley; 2. Bill Barksdale; 3. Gene LeFloor; 4. Lyle Gerac; 5. Luther Risher; 6. Roy Shuff; 7. Ed Hodges.

First Flight: 1. Jim Johnson; 2. Nig Laughlin; 3. John McCoppin; 4. D. Abshire; 5. Butch Franklin; 6. D. Patrizi; 7. Jim Minner.

Second Flight: 1. Jim Wilder; 2. Gene LaFont; 3. Ward McCurtain; 4. Ed Loggins; 5. Weldon Syme; 6. Jim Mouton; 7. Stan Roby.

Third Flight: 1. Tom Jasper; 2. Roy Kirkland; 3. H. T. Henrikson; 4. John Scott; 5. Mike Stathos; 6. Pat McMeel; 7. Ollice Steward.

LOW GROSS WINNER: Bill Barksdale, 78. LOW NET WINNER: Tom Jasper, 70.

Baton Rouge Bowlers Take Four of Six Titles in Tourney

Prejean, LeBlanc Lead High Scoring Parade in Annual Company Event

Johnny Prejean of Lake Charles and Gloria LeBlanc of Baton Rouge took top honors in the annual company bowling tournament held at Circle Lanes in Baton Rouge.

Over 110 bowlers from throughout the system gathered in the Capital City for the tourney, which this year was directed by Del Vavasseur and Nikki Falcon. Port Arthur will host the 1973 tournament.

It turned out to be a Baton Rouge tournament as the local keglers won four of the six categories, Lake Charles took the other two events with Prejean winning all-events with a 1944 score, and Joyce Blanchard taking women's singles with a 697 effort. All scores were based on the individual's handicap.

The winning totals in every event save one, men's singles, were higher than the scores rolled in 1971 when the tourney was held in Lake Charles. P. E. Whithead won this year's men's singles event with a fine 683 series, while Danny Blanchard of Lake Charles, who captured men's singles with a 697 in 1971, was far back in the pack this year.

Gloria LeBlanc had little trouble in outdistancing her nearest rival in the all-events. The Baton Rougean averaged 216 to amass her nine-game total of 1931, 65 pins better than Sara Gully, also of Baton Rouge.

The Nutcrackers (Baton Rouge) won the team event with 19 pins to spare in a close race with another Baton Rouge team, the Rebel Rousers, 2480 to 2461. Members of the Nutcrackers were Tom Carr, John Mathis, Gloria LeBlanc and Glenn LeBlanc.

Joyce Blanchard burned the lanes for a 697 series to take women's singles, over 50 pins higher than last year's winning effort of 647 rolled by Beaumont's Linda Bryant. Joe Covington and John Hillyard (Baton Rouge) took the doubles crown with a 1329 score, 62 pins better than the 1971 total of 1267 rolled by Baton Rouge's Lynn and Jan Graham.

Beaumont bowlers, who entered the tournament with the highest averages overall, did not scratch in the winner's circle. Zack Brown, a 185 average bowler came the closest to giving Beaumont a win with a second place finish in the men's singles with a 654. Wally Thomason and Fred Roffman gave Beaumont a third in the doubles for the next best effort.

Not one defending champion repeated his or her crown.

The high handicap game rolled during the tournament was a 273 by the all-events champion Johnny Prejean. High for the women was Sara Gully with a splendid 272.
